9 Kenneth Sachs,

No. CV-22-00430-PHX-SMB

10 Plaintiff,

ORDER

11 v.

12 Heidi Quinlan,

13 Defendant.

15 Pending before the Court is Plaintiff Kenneth Sachs' (1) Motion for Alternative 16 Service and Urgent Injunction, (Doc. 13); (2) Motion for Extension of Time to Serve 17 Summons, (Doc. 15); and (3) Motion to Seal, (Doc. 9). For reasons set forth below, the 18 Court will dismiss Sachs' Complaint and deny the pending motions.

19 I. Background

20 Sachs alleges that, on September 12, 2019, the Superior Court of Maricopa County 21 appointed Heidi Quinlan—a behavioral health professional—to serve as the “Therapeutic 22 Interventionist” in a dispute before that court. (Doc. 1 ¶ 5.) Following a court-ordered 23 psychological evaluation of Sachs, Quinlan submitted her report to the superior court on 24 May 21, 2020. (Id. ¶¶ 5–6.) The contents of this report are known. (See generally Doc. 1 25 at 10–16.) However, Sachs alleges the report contained numerous falsities that “are the 26 direct cause of [Sachs’] parenting time reduction to supervised visits only” because the 27 presiding judge “relied on the falsities.” (Doc. 1 ¶¶ 7–8.) Sachs also alleges the report 28 “was based upon false information, bias and personal thoughts rather than actual facts.”

1 (Id. ¶ 8.) Finally, Sachs alleges that “[Quinlan] used her position as a court appointed 2 Therapeutic Interventionist to exert authority and influence the Court to make a decision
 3 regarding the welfare of a child.” (Id. ¶ 10.)

4 Sachs’ Complaint contains three causes of action: (1) perjury under A.R.S.
 5 § 13-2702; (2) gross negligence; and (3) violation of his constitutional right to familial
 6 relations. (Id. ¶¶ 11–25.) Although the first two claims are state claims, the third is a 7 purported federal claim. In his Complaint, Sachs seeks (1) monetary damages in the sum 8 of $10,000,000; (2) pre- and post-judgment interests, costs, and attorney fees; (3) equitable 9 relief; and (4) punitive damages. (Id. at 8.) Sachs believes that—under 28 U.S.C. § 1343
 10 and 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b)—this Court is the proper jurisdiction and Venue. (Id. ¶¶ 3–4.)
 11 The Court disagrees.

12 II. Legal Standard

13 The Court must determine if it has subject-matter jurisdiction before it can consider 14 the merits of the case. Ruhrgas AG v. Marathon Oil Co., 526 U.S. 574, 583 (1999). Under 15 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure Rule 12(h)(3), the Court must dismiss a cause of action if 16 it determines—at any point—it lacks subject-matter jurisdiction. “Dismissal for lack of 17 subject-matter jurisdiction because of the inadequacy of the federal claim is proper only 18 when the claim is ‘so insubstantial, implausible, foreclosed by prior decisions of this Court, 19 or otherwise completely devoid of merit as to not involve a federal controversy.’” Steel 20 Co. v. Citizens for a Better Env’t, 523 U.S. 83, 89 (1998) (quoting Oneida Indian Nation 21 of N.Y. v. County of Oneida, 414 U.S. 161, 666 (1974)). But “[a] document filed pro se is 22 to be liberally construed, and a pro se complaint, however inartfully pleaded, must be held 23 to less stringent standards than formal pleadings drafted by lawyers.” Henry v. Adventist 24 Health Castle Med. Ctr., 363 F. Supp. 3d 1128, 1132–33 (D. Haw. 2019) (quoting Erickson 25 v. Pardus, 551 U.S. 89, 94, 127 S.Ct. 2197, 167 L.Ed.2d 1081 (2007)) (alterations original).

26 III. Discussion

27 A. The Complaint

28 Sachs’ Complaint alleges that “[t]his Court has jurisdiction over this action under

1 28 U.S.C. 1343 (civil rights).” (Doc. 1 ¶ 3.) Although Sachs fails to identify under which 2 subsection the Court has jurisdiction, the Court will consider the merit of each subsection.

3 Subsection (a)(1) and (a)(2) of 28 U.S.C. § 1343 are inapplicable because they 4 pertain only to claims under 42 U.S.C. § 1985, which involves conspiracy claims that 5 require “two or more persons.” Here, Sachs’ only allegations are against Quinlan, and he 6 makes no claims of conspiracy. (See generally Doc. 1.) Thus, these two subsections of 7 plainly inapposite to this case.

8 Under subsection (a)(4), the Court has jurisdiction when relief is sought under any 9 Act of Congress which provides protections of civil rights. Sachs does not cite to any Act 10 of Congress; thus, the Court can rule out the application of this subsection as well.

11 The final subsection—28 U.S.C. § 1343(a)(3)—states that the Court shall have 12 jurisdiction of an action to “redress the deprivation, under color of any State law, statute, 13 ordinance, regulation, custom, or usage, of any right, privilege or immunity secured by the 14 Constitution of the United States or by any Act of Congress.” Construing the Complaint 15 liberally—as the Court must—this is the only subsection with any potential application to 16 the facts at hand, though the Court ultimately finds that it does not confer jurisdiction.

17 “Merely [asserting] a constitutional claim” under section 1343(a)(3) “is not 18 sufficient to obtain jurisdiction.” Doe v. Klein, 599 F.2d 338, 340 (9th Cir. 1979). The 19 Supreme Court “has repeatedly held that the federal courts are without power to entertain 20 claims otherwise within their jurisdiction if they are so attenuated and unsubstantial as to 21 be absolutely devoid of merit; wholly unsubstantiated; obviously frivolous; plainly 22 unsubstantial; or no longer open to discussion.” Hagans v. Lavine, 415 U.S. 528, 536–537
 23 (1974) (cleaned up); see also Sachs v. Wees, No. CV-22-00368-PHX-DWL, 2022 WL 24 901415, at *2 (D. Ariz. Mar. 28, 2022). “The doctrine of substantiality is especially 25 important where a wholly frivolous federal claim serves as a pretext to allow a state law
 26 issue, the real focus of the claim, to be litigated in the federal system.” Wees, 2022 WL 27 901415, at *2 (quoting Davis v. Pak, 856 F.2d 648, 650–51 (4th Cir. 1988)).

28 Here, Sachs contends that Quinlan lied in her report to Sachs’ detriment. (Doc. 1 ¶

1 9.) Sachs also alleges Quinlan abused her power by “not present[ing] actual facts based on 2 medical evidence.” (Id. ¶ 10.) In doing so, Sachs contends that Quinlan “interfered with 3 [Sachs’] familial right of association by presenting a biased and unfair evaluation and 4 recommendation and using her position of power to create a false mental picture to the 5 Court, leading to its use by the honorable judge to reduce [Sachs’] parenting time to 6 supervised visitation only.” (Id. ¶ 25.)

7 None of Sachs’ claims suffice to confer jurisdiction on this Court. Sachs fails to 8 show how 28 U.S.C. §1334 is applicable, and further fails to show how Quinlan acted 9 under the color of law or could be considered a state actor. See Wees, 2022 WL 901415, 10 at *2 (“Plaintiff does not allege how 42 U.S.C. § 1983 is implicated here or how [the 11 defendant] could be considered a state actor.”); see also Lemke v. Jander, 2021 WL 12 778653, *4 (S.D. Cal. 2021) (“Plaintiff cannot invoke this Court’s jurisdiction based on 13 allegations that Defendant violated Plaintiff’s constitutional rights because Plaintiff has not 14 adequately alleged a federal right that Defendant violated or that Defendant was acting 15 under color of law.”)). Significantly, Sachs provides no explanation for why this Court 16 should treat a private actor—a court appointed therapist—as a state actor and has, thereby,
 17 failed to establish jurisdiction. See Florer v. Congregation Pidyon Shevuyim, N.A., 639
 18 F.3d 916, 924 (9th Cir. 2011) (“In order for private conduct to constitute governmental 19 action, something more must be present.”) (internal quotation marks and citation omitted).

20 A further jurisdictional hindrance to Sachs’ case arises under Arizona law, which 21 holds that if a therapist formulates an opinion about an issue pending before the court and 22 aids the court in making its decision—as Quinlan did here—then that therapist is entitled 23 to judicial immunity. See Brittner v. Lanzilotta, 438 P.3d 663, 665–66 (Ariz. Ct. App.
 24 2019) (“Absolute judicial immunity has been extended to ‘certain other court officials who 25 perform functions integral to the judicial process, including court-appointed psychologists 26 and psychiatrists who assist the court.’” (quoting Lavit v. Superior Ct. In & For Cnty. of 27 Maricopa, 839 P.2d 1141, 1144 (Ariz. Ct. App. 1992))). Sachs has provided no reason 28 why this immunity has been abrogated and, therefore, the Court is without jurisdiction to

1 hear the case. See also In re Castillo, 297 F.3d 940, 948 (9th Cir. 2002) (“Judicial or quasi-2 judicial immunity . . . is extended in appropriate circumstances to non[-]jurists ‘who 3 perform functions closely associated with the judicial process.’” (quoting *Cleavinger v.
 4 Saxner*, 474 U.S. 193, 200 (1985)).

5 Moreover, the Court finds that these jurisdictional ailments could not be cured by 6 amendment. Consequently, it would be futile to provide Sachs with leave to amend.

7 B. The Pending Motions

8 Sachs currently has three motions pending before the Court. (Docs. 9; 13; 15.) The 9 Court will deny as moot Sachs’ Motion for Alternative Service and Urgent Injunction, 10 (Doc. 13), and Motion for Extension of Time to Serve Summons, (Doc. 15). Thus, Sachs’
 11 only remaining motion is his Motion to Seal. (Doc. 9.) The Court will deny that Motion 12 on its merits.

13 Sachs’ Motion to Seal suffers from two significant ailments. First, it does not 14 comply with Local Rule 5.6(b). That rule requires that a party motioning to seal a 15 document “set forth a clear statement of the facts and legal authority justifying the filing 16 of the document under seal and must append (as a separate attachment) a proposed order 17 granting the motion.” LRCiv 5.6(b). Here, Sachs Motion merely lists Arizona’s rules of 18 civil procedure regarding motions to seal. (Doc. 9.) It does not contain any relevant legal 19 authority, nor does it proffer any facts in support of the Motion, nor does it append a 20 proposed order granting the Motion. (Id.) Thus, Sachs’ Motion is procedurally deficient.

21 Second, the Motion does not overcome the presumption articulated in *Kamakana v.
 22 City & Cty. of Honolulu*, 447 F.3d 1172 (9th Cir. 2006). There, the Ninth Circuit opined 23 that the public has a general right to inspect judicial records and documents, such that a 24 party seeking to seal a judicial record must overcome “a strong presumption in favor of 25 access.” Id. at 1178. To do so, a party must “articulate compelling reasons supported by 26 specific factual findings that outweigh the general history of access and the public policies 27 favoring disclosure.” Id. at 1178–79 (internal quotation marks and citations omitted).
 28 Here, Sachs has provided no facts; thus, it is impossible for the court to make any factual

1 findings. Likewise, Sachs has not provided any compelling reason for granting the Motion.
2 Indeed, as articulated above, his Motion contains nothing but irrelevant procedural rules.
3 (See Doc. 9.) Consequently, he has failed to overcome the presumption in favor of public 4 access to court filings, and the Court will deny the Motion to Seal.

5 IV. Conclusion

6 Accordingly,

7 IT IS ORDERED dismissing Plaintiff's Complaint with prejudice. (Doc. 1.)

8 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED denying all pending motions. (Docs. 9; 13; 15.)

9 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED instructing the Clerk to enter judgment in 10 accordance with this order and terminate this case.

11 Dated this 22nd day of June, 2022.
